

March 2008

GREAT NEWS! We received licensing for Star Barn B&B at the end of February. Halleluiah!! Perhaps you heard a sigh of relief emanating from this part of the world! We are good to go and ready!

Yes, there are still a few minor things that need doing and finishing. A little mudding and taping here, a little trim painting there. A little more decorating, a little more furniture to make it truly feel like home away from home.

Last month, our son and two of his friends traveled here for a visit, mostly to get away from the hustle and bustle of NJ and to enjoy all the snow, especially with trips on the snowmobiles. They all stayed at Star Barn B&B, our guinea pigs! We got two thumbs up from all of them. They enjoyed the public areas for playing games and sitting by the cozy fire. They all said the beds were comfortable, the gas stoves kept them warm, and the bathrooms just right. Their only complaint was the light in the loft – just not bright enough over the game table. As it turns out, this ceiling fan/light combo has a unique bulb which we have not been able to find, but will continue the search and hope to get something brighter. But, overall they were completely satisfied. And believe me, this group holds nothing back if they are not happy.

David has been working on updating the web site with new pictures and room descriptions. Hopefully this will be completed by mid March. For those of you who have been to the Guest House, we hope you'll give the B&B a try. We know you'll be just as happy there. We'll keep the two rooms in the house available for overflow, should that become necessary.

There's plenty of room in the inn for snowmobilers right now. You can bring your sleds and head out directly from the B&B. And Saddleback and Sugarloaf will keep you skiers happy. If neither of those is appealing, if you're just looking for a quiet, magical place to relax and renew, this is it. We look forward to hearing from you!
